Job context

This position is supporting a Cancer Research UK-funded research programme aimed at investigating the metabolic dependencies of CREBBP-deplete Small Cell Lung Cancer cells under biologically relevant conditions, such as nutrient stress. Utilising our novel 3-dimensional functional genomics pipeline we have identified novel tumour suppressors that are driving disease trajectory and treatment response. This position will use metabolomics, proteomics, small molecule inhibitor screening and other cutting-edge platforms to dissect the metabolic architecture of cancer models that harbour alterations in these tumour suppressors. The long-term goal is to understand the fundamental metabolic architecture of these cancers and identify novel drug targets that can be used in conjunction with first-line therapy to increase treatment response.

Job purpose

- To undertake research investigations in collaboration with and under the supervision of the Dr. Barrie Peck in order to realise the objectives and development of the research programme.
- To contribute to the overall scientific endeavour of the Centre, and possibly to take responsibility for areas of other projects, as demand requires.

3. Prepare reports of research results for public presentation through seminars and conferences. Contribute to writing papers summarising research findings for publication in peer-reviewed journals (of high international standing where appropriate) and other reports where required.
4. Conduct empirical research as required by the research programme. Make research initiatives and original contributions to the research programme wherever possible, and to contribute freely to the team research environment in a manner conducive to the success of the research programme as a whole.
5. Develop, in collaboration with the Dr. Barrie Peck and the team, such new techniques as may be necessary to achieve the objectives of the research.
6. Collate data and undertake any appropriate analysis of data as requested by Dr. Barrie Peck.
7. Maintain appropriate databases, keeping accurate written and computerised records and to ensure that these records are stored in a secure place, and to maintain confidentiality of all electronically stored personal data in line with the provisions of the Data Protection Act.
8. Undertake literature and database searches for the research project, and to be able to interpret and present the findings of the literature searches and advise the research teams appropriately regarding potential projects as required by the Dr. Barrie Peck.
9. Work closely with colleagues e.g. Joint Research Management Office, Impact team, to provide assistance with, and ensure delivery of, the administrative aspects of the research activities as required by the needs of the research programme.
10. Keep up to date with subject related and appropriate academic/professional matters, in particular, developments in the specific subject area.

12. To show a professional attitude to matters of laboratory hygiene, organisation and safety, and to observe and to take an active role in fulfilling all statutory health and safety regulations.
13. The duties of the post outlined above are not exhaustive, and the postholder will be expected to be co-operative and flexible, undertaking such administrative and other duties as may from time to time be reasonably expected of a member of research grade staff in a university.

14. These duties will be subject to review in line with the changing requirements of the School/Institute/University, and with the development needs of the postholder as identified through regular review/appraisal processes.
